TransferPay®

Disclaimer

Legal notice of the terms and conditions of disclaimer that will be applied to the use of our website. Please, if you need information about our privacy policy, go to the "Legal" section of our website.

Version: 1/1-2020

English

Disclaimer

We do our best to provide correct, complete and up-to-date information on our website, but this information cannot be a guarantee of compliance. The information on our website is freely available for informational purposes and is not intended as personal advice.

At TransferPay we are not responsible for any damage that may arise from the use of this information or an error on our website.

You will find references and links to other websites from ours. We are not responsible for the content of the other pages, and nor to check such information regularly.

Use links and references only at your own risk. We try to keep our website available at all times. However, it may happen that the website is temporarily out of service or does not work properly. We are not responsible for any possible damage that this may entail.

Intellectual property

All the information on our website, including logos, corporate information and designs, is protected by copyright and intellectual property rights. You are authorized to make private (non-commercial) use of this information, referencing the original source. Any other use requires our explicit written consent.

Changes and jurisdiction

Our website may undergo changes, including this legal notice, without the need to be notified. For this reason we recommend regularly checking the changes that may have occurred at www.transferpay.uk.

This legal notice is regulated and must be interpreted in accordance with the laws of the United Kingdom. Any discrepancy or dispute about this legal notice and / or the information on our website can be submitted exclusively to the competent courts in the UK.